

A CHRISTMAS TREE WITH A DIFFERENCE!

Tamwed is working with two communities in remote areas of South India to help them adapt to the changing climate. Long droughts and severe, unseasonal storms are having a serious impact on those who rely on farming for income and food with whole crops being damaged or lost adding to severe hardship and poverty. The planting of drought-resistant, nitrogen-fixing, carbon-absorbing and income-generating trees and plants is proving to be popular with the communities supported by our partner NGOs. Trained staff raise awareness about the cause and effect of climate change and then allocate appropriate plants and trees which are planted next to homes, on farmland, in schools or on community land. Fertilisers and protective sleeves are used as necessary.

£5 pays for 10 trees or plants.
